

Wind. For my community.

Wind energy is providing Nova Scotia with clean, affordable power, new jobs and a brighter future as the province moves away from coal.

“Our community showed leadership by embracing wind energy.

Today the wind farm provides significant economic benefits to our municipality and high-value jobs for local contractors.”

Kelly McVicar, Councillor, Pictou County

The Glen Dhu wind farm near Merigomish produces 60 Megawatts of clean electricity – enough to power over 17,000 homes. The wind farm injected $22 million into the local community during construction and provides $790,000 per year in local benefits.

www.windformycommunity.ca

